FISCAL ANALYSIS

ASSUMPTION

Officials from the Department of Public Safety (Missouri Highway Patrol, Office of the Director, and Capitol Police), Department of Natural Resources, the Department of Social Services - State Technical Assistance Team, and the Springfield Police Department each assume the proposal would not fiscally impact their respective agencies.

Officials from the Missouri Department of Conservation (MDC) assume the proposal would have an unknown negative fiscal impact due to the unknown cost of the module.

Oversight assumes the MDC could absorb the additional expense from this proposal within its current appropriation levels.

Officials from the St. Louis County Police Department state the fiscal impact on St. Louis County for this bill is unknown due to the ambiguous wording and meaning behind this bill. There will be some sort of cost associated with the module to test an officer's cultural competency. It is unknown what a test of that sort encompasses or what it will look like, and therefore the exact cost of such a test is unknown. There would be some sort of cost to St. Louis County to send 850 officers to take a test annually. Along with the cost of the test, there would be the cost of overtime required to make sure all beats are staffed while officers are at testing. Along with this, if the officer fails such a test, there will be more costs incurred with the required follow-up training and retesting. Without knowing anything about cultural competency tests we are unable to provide an estimate, but can say there would be a fiscal impact on St. Louis County Police.

Officials from the Columbia Police Department state if this is in addition to the currently required racial profiling training that officers already have it will create significant impact. Of 160 officers, this equals 480 hours. The salary alone is nearly $10,000. In addition, removing officers from their regular assignment to attend additional mandated training will create unknown staffing issues requiring overtime to be paid. Also, paying a trainer to provide the training is an unknown cost. In short, this would impact our budget.

Officials from the Boone County Sheriff's Department state for approximately 75 certified peace officers within this agency, cost would be incurred at the hourly rate of pay for each hour each deputy was required to attend/take the module and pass the test. An approximately hourly rate of $17.69/hour is used to calculate a cost of $1,326.75 for each hour the 75 peace officers of this agency would spend in this activity. Add the same amount for each additional hour. This figure does not include any travel or meal expenses should the officers be required to travel outside of Boone County for this activity.

Officials from the Platte County Sheriff's Department state there will be additional costs associated with putting officer/deputies through cultural diversity competency training. Currently Missouri law requires peace officers to receive racial profiling training which is different from cultural diversity competency training, which is not currently required under the law. The Platte County Sheriff's Office anticipates that if this bill were to become law it would either have to incur the added expense of certifying trainers to provide this type of training or that it would have to send deputies that fail the POST cultural diversity competency test to training put on by outside providers. In either case expected expenses could include: registration fees, per diem, lodging, fuel and overtime. It is not possible to provide an exact amount as the cost of these trainings, the number of employees that would need the training and the location of these trainings is unknown. Additionally, the Sheriff's Office may incur the expense of backfilling a deputy's shift while they are in training. It is the belief of the Sheriff's Office that these costs may be significant depending on the factors mentioned above and the possibility of other factors that cannot be anticipated at this time.

Officials from the Buchanan County Sheriff's Department, the Cole County Sheriff's Department, the Independence Police Department, the Jefferson City Police Department, the St. Charles Police Department, and the St. Louis Metropolitan Police Department did not respond to Oversight's request for fiscal impact.

Oversight will assume that local political subdivisions could incur annual costs exceeding $100,000 to comply with this proposal.

FISCAL IMPACT - Small Business

No direct fiscal impact to small businesses would be expected as a result of this proposal.

FISCAL DESCRIPTION

Currently, peace officers who make traffic stops are required to receive three hours of training within a three-year reporting period concerning the prohibition against racial profiling and said training must promote the understanding and respect for racial and cultural differences and the use of effective, noncombative methods for carrying out law enforcement duties in a racially and culturally diverse environment. This bill changes this section to apply to all peace officers.

The bill requires any peace officer to complete a module established by the POST commission to determine if he or she is culturally competent. The peace officer must receive a passing score, as determined by the POST commission. If an officer obtains a failing score, he or she must attend training on cultural diversity competency and retest until a passing score is obtained.

This legislation is not federally mandated, would not duplicate any other program and would not require additional capital improvements or rental space.
